Series edited by Christian Lotz and Antonio Calcagno

The Continental Philosophy and the History of Thought series seeks to augment and amplify scholarship in continental philosophy by exploring its rich and complex relationships to figures, schools of thought, and philosophical movements that are crucial for its evolution and development. A historical focus allows potential authors to uncover important but understudied thinkers and ideas that were nonetheless foundational for various continental schools of thought. Furthermore, critical scholarship on the histories of continental philosophy will also help re-position, challenge, and even overturn dominant interpretations of established, well-known philosophical views while refining and re-interpreting them in light of new historical discoveries and textual analyses. The series seeks to publish carefully edited collections and high-quality monographs that present the best of scholarship in continental philosophy and its histories.

Forthcoming books in this series deal with the ontological roots of phenomenology, twentieth-century French philosophy, Foucault's critical philosophy of history; labor theory of the soul; Hegel and Heidegger; Hannah Arendt and the history of thought; Hispanic literary philosophy; and negative dialectics.

PROPOSAL GUIDELINES

To submit a manuscript for consideration by Lexington Books, please send the following:

- a prospectus (see below for details)
- one or two sample chapters (preferred), or previously published articles in the same vein of research
- your curriculum vitae

Please do not send your entire manuscript. If you are proposing a contributed volume, please include titles, affiliations, and brief resumes for each of the contributors. And in lieu of sample chapters for an edited collection, we would prefer a brief abstract of each chapter.

The prospectus should include:

- 1. Your name, email address, and professional affiliation.
2. The working title of your project.
3. A short description that succinctly states the argument of the book (1 – 3 sentences).
4. A detailed description of the book outlining the core themes, issues, goals, and/or topics of the work, what makes it unique, and what questions it seeks to answer. (2 – 5 pgs)
5. An annotated table of contents, with a descriptive paragraph for each chapter.
6. A description of your target audience (undergraduate or graduate students? scholars (in which departments)? professionals?).
7. An analysis of competing or similar books (including publishers and dates), describing distinctive and original elements of your project that set it apart from these other works.
8. (optional) A list of courses in which your book might be used as a text or supplementary text, if any, along with the course level at which this book may be used.
9. An indication of whether any part of your manuscript has been published previously.
10. An indication if the manuscript is a revised version of a doctoral dissertation. If so, what changes you are proposing to prepare it for publication.
11. The length of the manuscript either as a word count or a page count (12-point type, double-spaced 8 1/2" by 11" pages). Will there be figures, tables, or other non-text material, and, if so, approximately how many? If the text is not complete, please still estimate its final length, not including the non-text material.
12. If the manuscript is not complete, an estimate of when it will be finished.
13. The names of four to seven respected scholars in your field with whom you have no personal or professional relationship. Include their titles, affiliations, and e-mail addresses.
14. An indication of whether the manuscript is under consideration by other publishers (we especially need to know if you have sent the proposal or manuscript to another division of Rowman & Littlefield).

Please send the above materials by email:
